NOTES FROM THE DIRECTOR -

Welcome to our production of "The Lion King Jr."! In this vibrant musical, we will not only explore the Circle of Life, but also celebrate the growth, friendships, and unforgettable experiences we've shared throughout the past five weeks of our theater camp.

Just as Simba embarks on a transformative journey, so have all of you. From the auditions where you took your first courageous step, to the exhilarating moments of meeting new friends who share your passion for the arts, each experience has shaped you into the talented individuals you are today.

Camp life has provided a nurturing environment for us to learn, grow, and create lasting memories. Through the process of learning a show, we have developed skills, honed our talents, and discovered new depths within ourselves. The collaborative efforts, dedication, and hard work have all played a part in shaping our unique storytelling.

Throughout these weeks, we have forged deep and meaningful friendships. The camaraderie and support you have shown one another have created a special bond that will last beyond the final curtain call. Cherish the connections you have made, as they are a testament to the beauty of theater bringing people together.

"The Lion King Jr." reminds us of the transformative power of storytelling. As we step onto the stage, let us celebrate the magic of narrative, transporting ourselves and our audiences to distant lands and inspiring emotions. Through our performances, we honor the art of storytelling and the profound impact it has on our lives.

In this production, we will bring to life the spirit of the Circle of Life, intertwining it with the memories we have shared at camp. Let us celebrate the growth, the friendships, and the beauty of storytelling that have enriched our lives over the past five weeks.

Break a leg!
